

Dear Healthcare Professional,

I wanted to take a moment and give thanks to RadSciences Group. Being a small and rural hospital, occasionally we have difficulty finding good technologists. We are also very particular about the search firms we use. We put each company through an evaluation process before deciding whether or not to let them represent us. RadSciences Group has done a very good job of representing our area and hospital.

Over the past three months, RadSciences Group has found three very good candidates for us who we hired full-time. In each case, our consultant did a thorough job of screening and qualifying each candidate before he sent them to me, and this really saves me time.

Like you, we don't like using search firms. But if we have to, RadSciences Group is a good company to work with. They don't call us all the time or try to pressure us in to hiring their people. They simply do what we expect.

Sincerely,

Maggie Bailey
